

The Ultimate Financial Services Business Platform

The Opportunity You Want. The Support You Need.

People's financial circumstances have changed. Many individuals and families struggle to meet their most basic financial needs as pension plans and traditional retirement accounts are no longer enough to sustain them during retirement. These everyday people have been forced to become more money savvy as they — not their employers — must bear the responsibility for their retirement.

But the financial industry has changed, too. Financial services professionals find themselves working in a complex industry with a vast amount of investment options to consider.

In fact, today's volatile markets demand diverse investment options for clients. In addition, middle-income people are in search of a well-respected, value-driven financial services company that will help them develop strategies for their families' long-term well-being.

Transamerica Financial Advisors, Inc., Transamerica Financial Group Division (TFG) is that company.

Transamerica Financial Group brings investment and professional money management services previously reserved for the very wealthy to middle-income families. TFG offers investment products and services to middle-income families that have less than a six-figure investment.*

TFG works with a team of some of the most well-known product providers and third-party money managers in the industry, giving its representatives the ability to choose appropriate products and services for their clients' financial circumstances. And, with the vast options these representatives have at their disposal, clients can be confident that their TFG representative will be armed with the knowledge, products and services that can help them weather economic change.

In addition, as a representative with TFG, you have:

These diverse product offerings help TFG representatives address the challenges that clients face both near- and long-term.

Investment Advisory Services

Dramatic declines in the stock market can have a significant impact on investors' holdings. Investors, particularly those in or near retirement, are living longer and need professional help managing their money. TFG works with some of the most well-known third-party money managers. The management strategies employed by these managers can generally be categorized as tactical or strategic. Tactical management strives to protect assets during market downturns while participating in market upturns.

As an Investment Advisor Representative with TFG, take advantage of:

- A fee-based income. Your income is not based on commissions, but rather on a percentage of your client's assets placed under management.
- Relationships with leading third-party money managers. TFG's third-party money managers use advanced market monitoring technology to actively monitor their model portfolios. This allows you to focus on identifying strategies that can help your clients meet their objectives.
- An untapped market. As pension plans begin to dwindle, middle-income families are in search of personal professional money management. TFG's third-party money managers treat smaller accounts with the same care with which they handle their largest accounts, helping everyday people reach their financial goals.
- The chance to build a team. As an independent professional, you can build a team of other representatives and earn a percentage of the business that they bring to your organization.
- Support to grow your business. Receive solid marketing, training and back office support to help you build a successful business.

Industry Leaders On Your Team
